

IMAGINARY FRIENDS

A CONNECTED OPERATING PLATFORM

A practical overview of the capabilities, connections and time-saving workflows the new platform can introduce.

01 / THE OPERATING FOUNDATION

One connected source of information

Talent, clients, deals, campaigns, tasks, content and payment progress will be managed through connected records. Information is entered once and shown wherever it is relevant - reducing duplicate work, conflicting information and the need to update multiple Notion pages manually.

01Personalised and secure access

Management can oversee agency operations. Managers see their assigned talent and campaigns. Finance sees invoicing and payment information. Talent sees only their own opportunities, tasks, deadlines and approved payment information. Internal notes, agency fees and information relating to other talent remain restricted.

02A central work queue

Each person can see what needs attention today, what is approaching its deadline, what is overdue, what is awaiting approval, and the client, campaign or talent each task relates to. This removes the need to search separate pages and individual talent workspaces.

Designed to make the agency's operational picture clear without exposing sensitive information to the wrong people.

02 / DELIVERY WORKFLOWS

Guided from deal confirmation to payout

The platform will guide the team through the normal stages of a deal or campaign. Once a deal is confirmed, it can prepare the standard actions and keep their progress visible.

01 Contract preparation and signature	02 Brief and product delivery
03 Content deadlines	04 Internal review
05 Client approval	06 Publishing
07 Evidence and analytics	08 Invoicing
09 Payment follow-up	10 Talent payment

Deadline reminders and important alerts

The platform will monitor agreed dates and bring the appropriate actions to the right person: contracts awaiting signature, content and publishing deadlines, overdue drafts, approvals, invoices, talent payments, events and loan-return dates. Important decisions and external communications will continue to require human review.

03 / CONTENT AND FINANCE

Clear approvals. Clear payment visibility.

03Connected content approvals

Content is linked directly to its deal and deliverable. The clear progression is: Draft submitted -> internal review -> client review -> approved -> published. Previous versions, requested changes and approval decisions can be retained as a clear record of how final content was reached.

04Invoicing and talent payments

A connected view of what has been agreed, invoiced, outstanding and received - alongside what is payable to talent and what has been approved or transferred. This supports financial administration while working alongside existing accounting and banking arrangements.

Organised documents and campaign files

Contracts, briefs, content files, invoices and payment evidence will be attached to the deal, campaign or task they relate to. Existing external folders can still be linked where appropriate, while the platform makes ownership and context easier to understand.

A clear activity history

Important changes can record what changed, who made the change, when it happened, what decision was approved, and whether a reminder or automated action was completed. This improves accountability when work passes between team members.

04 / PLANNED CONNECTIONS

A controlled transition, not a disruptive switch

The platform can work alongside the agency's current tools while progressively centralising the operational picture.

01Notion migration

Prioritise active talent, clients, deals, tasks and campaigns. Identify duplicate or incomplete records for review rather than carrying them forward unchecked. Keep Notion available as a reference archive during transition.

02Email notifications

Selected notifications for task assignments, deadlines, approvals, overdue actions and daily or weekly summaries. Rules will be controlled to avoid unnecessary messages.

03Secure document storage

Store contracts, briefs, content assets, invoices and supporting documents, with the same permissions as the related deal, campaign or talent record.

04Reports and exports

Produce summaries of active deals, campaign progress, tasks, deadlines, invoices, talent payments and closeouts. Export information for finance, reporting or reconciliation when required.

05 / EXAMPLES OF AUTOMATION

Routine next steps, prepared consistently

The purpose of automation is not to remove human control. It is to ensure routine next steps are prepared consistently and that important work is less likely to be missed.

WHEN THIS HAPPENS	THE PLATFORM CAN
A deal is confirmed	Prepare the standard delivery checklist
A contract remains unsigned	Remind the responsible manager
A content deadline approaches	Notify the relevant talent and manager
Content is submitted	Create the internal review action
Internal review is approved	Move the content into client review
Changes are requested	Create and track a new revision
Content is approved	Add it to the publishing workflow
Content is published	Request the final link and analytics
An invoice becomes overdue	Flag it for follow-up
Client payment is recorded	Prepare the talent-payment action
A task becomes overdue	Bring it to management's attention

06 / EXPECTED IMPACT

More time for work that needs people

The platform should reduce time currently spent entering the same information in several places, rebuilding routine task lists, checking separate talent workspaces, monitoring deadlines manually, searching for files and approvals, requesting routine updates, preparing internal summaries, and connecting client payments with talent payments.

5-12

administrative hours per week A reasonable initial objective across the team, based on the present workflow structure.

01Operations

Less repeated data entry, fewer rebuilt task lists, fewer routine status requests, and less time spent preparing internal progress summaries.

02Delivery and finance

Less searching across talent workspaces, manual deadline monitoring, file and approval hunting, and client-to-talent payment tracking.

How success will be assessed

Actual savings will depend on the volume of active talent, deals and campaigns. After launch, the platform will make it possible to review the operational improvements achieved and identify where further automation can create the greatest value.

The precise layout and delivery order will be refined during development. The capabilities in this overview establish the practical direction for a more connected, secure and accountable agency operating platform.
